The State's process for easing the Stay-at-Home order spans four separate stages:

- Stage 1 focuses on safety and preparedness
- Stage 2, divided in two phases, provides the first opportunity for non-essential businesses to open, with operational modifications
- Stage 3 allows for the reopening of higher risk workplaces
- Stage 4 lifts all restrictions

The State is lifting restrictions when certain health and safety criteria are met. Some counties have been able to ease restrictions faster than others, under variances from the State, based on local health conditions.

As of June 12, 2020, Orange County has entered early Stage 3, which allows for some higher-risk workplaces to reopen.

For more information on the phased reopening plan, please visit the State's Covid-19 response website.

What are the latest rules on face coverings?

The California Department of Public Health on Thursday, June 18 released updated guidance that requires Californians to wear a face covering in high-risk settings. When does the Stay at Home order end?

The Governor has not announced an end date.

Will the City of Newport Beach, County of Orange, or State of California enforce the Governor's Order?

He also expects Californians to "self-regulate," noting that it is incumbent on all of us to adapt our behaviors to the evolving coronavirus response.

The State has more information and a list of questions and answers for various economic sectors here: <https://covid19.ca.gov/stay-home-except-for-essential-needs/>

Why is the six-foot separation important?

According to the Centers for Disease Control website, the virus is thought to mainly spread between people who are in close contact (defined as within about six feet). It spreads through respiratory droplets produced when an infected person coughs or sneezes. The now airborne droplets can land in the mouths or noses or possibly be inhaled into the of those nearby. Some studies have suggested that COVID-19 may be spread by people who are not showing symptoms.

What is the City doing about people who aren't following the six-foot-separation directive?

Our response is in line with what neighboring cities are doing and more importantly, it is in line with Governor Newsom's expectations. He has not called for enforcement of the social distancing directive. Rather, he is asking Californians to self-regulate and change our behaviors to conform with the Stay at Home order and social distancing directive.

Do I need to wear a face covering when I go out in public?

In Orange County, face coverings are mandatory for employees of businesses that may come in contact with the public, such as restaurants and grocery store employees.

In Orange County, face coverings are strongly recommended, but not mandatory, in public spaces. However, individual businesses may have policies making face coverings mandatory inside those establishments.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends that everyone over the age of 2 should wear a cloth face covering – one that covers your mouth and nose - when going out in public. (There are exceptions – those having trouble breathing or are incapacitated should not wear a face covering.)

A face covering is meant to protect others in case you are infected. Public health officials emphasize that face coverings are not substitutes for physical distancing – keeping six feet away from others – and regular hand washing.

Community-Specific Matters

Where can I get information on the number of local COVID-19 cases and hospitalizations?

The County provides updated information daily at <https://occovid19.ochealthinfo.com/coronavirus-in-oc>

There are several important things to keep in mind about the number of local cases.

1. The city-by-city figures reflect the place of residence for those who have tested positive, not necessarily where the transmission occurred.
2. The data provided does not reflect all COVID-19 cases in a given community. Those who are asymptomatic and have mild cases may not be tested, and therefore not reflected in the data.
3. The city-by-city numbers should not be interpreted to reflect where transmission is geographically focused or not, because COVID-19 is present in all communities in the county.

How can I get tested for COVID-19?

If you have a health care provider, contact your health care provider first.

If those who do not have a health care provider, the Orange County Health Care Agency has released a list of FDA-approved testing sites for County residents who are showing symptoms of COVID-19.

Please visit the County's web site at this link for a list of approved testing locations:
