TIDEPOLS IN OCTOBER

Don't let your exploration be a horror

This spooky season, don't let low tide exploring be a horror show for tidepool animals. There are several good low tides on afternoons in October. When these low tide conditions occur, our fascination with the sea and its inhabitants peak, and our land-based feet find a way out on to slick rocks to explore and wonder about the animal life beneath the waves.

Remember to observe, be gentle, and disturb as little as possible so life here can survive and thrive without all the drama.
